

Japan is a country known for its advanced technologies, culture and research institutions; thus, the reason why I decided to study in Japan. In 2013 I was given the opportunity, through the MEXT scholarship, to pursue my PhD at Nagasaki University. During my studies, I was able to interact with students from all over the world and work with some of the best researchers in my field. I also had the opportunity to experience firsthand the Japanese culture. Studying in Japan has provided me with the knowledge and skills necessary to advance my professional career.
